

It is my understanding that the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) is considering a proposal that could diminish the protections I receive from Indiana's Telephone Privacy law. Specifically, I understand that the FCC is considering preempting state Telephone Privacy laws in favor of adopting one national standard that I consider to be inferior to that adopted in Indiana.

I feel strongly that the FCC should not implement any proposal that would lessen Indiana's Telephone Privacy law protections.

Indiana's Telephone Privacy law has improved my time at home by reducing to nearly zero what had been 15 or more calls per week.

I believe this is a very important issue and that the FCC should look at the Indiana law as a model.
